

Interact with the public while out on the street. The ones I've seen out and about never acknowledge people. They look right past them instead. They seem to think that they are apart from the community instead of part of it.